

CONTENT

	Page
● Identification of heat shock protein 90 (HSP90) gene family in cocoa (Theobroma cacao L.) in silico study. Qori’atul Mustafidah, Mukhamad Su’udi, and Sulistyani Pancaningtyas	73-85
● The potential of Trichoderma sp. as a decomposer of cocoa pod husk-based compost on degradation of herbicide and insecticide residues. Andrian Perdana and Niken Puspita Sari	86-100
● The effect of melatonin application and watering frequency on the growth of cocoa seedlings (Theobroma cacao L.). Fakhrusy Zakariyya, Eka Putri Novelia, Gatot Subroto, and Sholeh Avivi	101-108
● Insect community status in different field conditions and clones in Kaliwining Cocoa Experimental Station, East Java, Indonesia. Sisko Budianto, Wiwin Windriyanti, Sri Wiyatiningsih, and Indah Anitasari	109-124
● Sensory acceptability and viability of Lactobacillus acidophilus and Lactobacillus bulgaricus in spent coffee ground candy. Remilyn V. Concepcion, Janiko Marco R. Luneta, and Eufemio G. Barcelon	125-137
● The role of cocoa commodity as a base sector in Indonesia’s regional development. Amanda Sekar Adyanti, Joni Murti Mulyo Aji, and Evita Soliha Hani	138-154

